ing hours. This is more than two per minute. There is great want in the earthquake region. There is sufficient food to prevent actual starvation, but over 400,000 people are homeless, with almost no cloth-ing. Winter is rapidly approaching, and the suffering will be very great. A section of about thirty miles on the railroad, from Tokio to Kijoto, is somuch damaged that it probably will have to be rebuilt, and will not be open again until next June. A curious fact is that an anonymous writer sent a letter to the Cabinet, two months ago, announcing that a national calamity would take place on Oct. 28. This was the very day of the earthquake. The letter is preserved in the government archives, and undoubtedly is authentic.

OUR SOUTHERN NEIGHBORS. Condition of Business and State of Politics in

Central American Republics. CITY OF MEXICO, Nov. 6. - Following are latest advices from Central and South

American nations: The financial condition in Gautemala is still bad. The election excitement is increasing, and there is much speculation as to who will be the dark horse candidate for the presidency that is expected to be brought forward by President Barrillas at the last moment. So far there is no revolution in sight, but it is apprehended that there will be one before the next President takes his seat.

The San Salvador Minister of Finance i preparing a plan to raise funds which are very much needed. The people in general oppose any loan abroad, and should one be arranged it would probably lead to a revolution. Any party to triumph in San Salvador must repudiate foreign debts, particularly the loan raised by Spaniards in Paris.

Costa Rica is perfectly quiet and will not be drawn into the difficulties of neighboring nations. Money is scarce, but the crops will be larger than usual this year, as more extensive planting has been done. The government will soon commence preparing its exhibit for the Chicago fair. In Nicaragua there is a more hopeful feeling about the construction of the Nica-ragua canal, as the United States has now seen its importance in case of war with Chili, in moving ships of war quickly. Nicaragua is suffering financial depression, the same as her neighbors, but with the ommencement of active work on the cana times are expected to become brighter. In Honduras the opposition to Seivas, the newly-elected President, is becoming more and more pronounced daily. There is but little money in the treasury, crops are partially abandoned, and small-pox and typhus fever are causing great suffering among the people. Business is almost dead at Panama; sickness is paramount. Most of the few merchants remaining are preparing to move, as nearly every body has lost or is losing faith in any improvement. It is rumored at Lima, Peru, that in case of war with Chili, the United States would support Peru, and that it would be easy to form an alliance with Bolivia.

Mexico Will Make a Good Exhibit.

CITY OF MEXICO, Dec. 6.-President Diaz will name commissioners to the World's Columbian Fair during the present month. The separate States will not be called on for money, though each one will make a creditable exhibit. This government will not require any aid from the commissioners sent here by the Chicago people. The Mexican commissioners will go to Chicago study the condition of things there and make a report to President Diaz, who will then decide what shall be done; but one sure thing is he will see that Mexico upholds her dignity and sends an exhibit exceeding in importance and extent that sent to Paris, and a better one than of the Latin-American countries, if not superior to all of them com-The commercial interests of Mexico will be the principal feature of the display, though other departments will be well attended to.

Dom Pedro's Body Lying in State. Paris, Dec. 6.-The body of Dom Pedro, attired in the uniform of a Brazilian general, is lying in state in the room in which the ex-Emperor died. The King of Portugal has ordered that royal honors be paid to the remains, unless the Duke and Duchess D'En insist that any political attitude is likely to offend the government of Brazil. The body has been embalmed and other preparations have been made for the funeral, which is to be held on Thursday. Dom Pedro's family has received many calls of condolence. Among those who have called and inscribed their names in the visitors' book are Premier De Freycinet and a host of other notables.

Dom Pedro left no will. The little property he had will be divided between the Countess D'Eu and the children of the deceased daughter, Princess Leopoldine of Saxe-Coburg. The artist Louise Albema had just completed a portrait of Dom Pedro when he died.

The Gilt-Edged Electric-Light System at Columbus Said to Be Played Out.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal, COLUMBUS, Ind., Dec. 6 .- Eighteen months ago this city went to the expense of putting in an electric-light plant at a cost of $13,-000. The plant was of the Westinghouse pattern. There were many who questioned the advisability of the city changing from the contract system to that of furnishing its own light, and the matter went to court. The city was already in debt to the full limit allowed by law, but the citizens raising this objection were beaten and the light went in. Since that time several reports have been given out to the effect that the light was being furnished at a cheaper rate than in any other city. These reports were, in some instances, taken as true, and this city was often quoted as one having the cheapest light in the State. At the last meeting of the City Council, however, there was a great stir created when the report of the chairman of the light committee was read, which showed that a careful investigation of the lamps had been made and that they are worn out and of no further value. A resolation was prepared and adopted condemning the lights and authorizing the Mayor

Lively Debate in the Senate Probable Over a Treaty Recently Negotiated.

CHECKMATING ENGLAND.

A Treaty That Will Probably Provoke Heated Discussion in the Senate.

Special to the Indianapols Journal. WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 .- It is expected that very soon after the Senate has really settled down to work the President will send to it the new treaty which has been negotiated with the Hawaiian islands. This treaty is sure to provoke an interesting discussion. It takes the place of the old treaty, which became virtually worthiess when the reciprocity clause in the McKinley bill became a law. Under the old treaty Hawaiian sugar was admitted free of duty, and the sugar planters were enabled to make a profit of about 25 per cent. But now all sugar comes in free, and the Hawaiians are no longer the favored class. Therefore they sent Dr. Mott Smith to Washington to see what could be done, and he has just suc-cessfully concluded his mission.

The point of interest about the treaty is that it proposes absolute free trade between the two countries. Hawaii will admit, free of duty, every article imported there from the United States, whether agricultural or manufactured, in return for which the United States will receive, without a tariff, everything which the Ha-waiian islands may send here. Should the treaty be ratified the Hawaiian planters will at once begin to raise truits, arrowroots, etc., and pay no further attention to the wholesale export of sugar. Since the McKinley bill became a law the profit on sugar for them is only about 5 per cent., and they do not care to raise it for such small returns. But as soon as they commence to raise fruits they will come in competition with the California planters, for tariff was placed on fruits by the McKinbill. When the bill is taken up in the Senate for consideration there are likely to be some very vigorous protests from the

The exports from the United States to Hawaii would, if duty was charged upon them by the latter government, place $400,-000 in the Hawaiian treasury. Under the new treaty the amount of duty sacrificed will be at least $550,000, in view of the increased exports from the United States. The trade of this country will, therefore, be one of the reasons why the treaty should be ratified; but more weighty still is the fact that it is to the interest of the United States to continue the most friendly relations with the Hawaiian government. The islands command a most strategic position in the Pacific ocean, and England is ready to establish a protectorate over them at the slightest provocation. It is this desire to checkmate England that puts the administration, sworn to protection as it is, in the position of asking the Senate to ratify a treaty that proposes absolute free

THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Facts About an Important Government Pub-Beation-Cost of a New Dress.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.-On Tuesday morning next the first number of the Congressional Record for the Fifty-second Congress will make its appearance. This is an important publication. It contains a verbatim report of all the proceedings which take place on the floors of both houses, including speeches, and is the dernier ressort, or final authority, for all disputes as to just what has or has not been done by Congress. The Congressional Record is sometimes a very voluminous publication, and ordinarily appears six days in the week, excepting Monday. It is a morning publication. It has two very broad columns of brevier, and its pages are about as wide as the widest pages of a fashion journal or review. Sometimes it has from 100 to 125 pages of solid matter, which would make an octave book of four hundred or five hundred pages. Altogether the publication of the Congressional Record makes more type-setting and press-work than any half dozen daily newspapers in the country. It is the only great publication in the United States which has all the help and accessories necessary for the work. No expense is spared, as all of Congress, and the entire country for that matter, are keenly interested in getting out the publication, and on time. It requires an enormous amount of type to get out the Congressional Record. A new dress is procured at the beginning of about every other Congress, every four years, and sometimes every two years. A new dress for the Congressional Record is a matter of over one hundred tons of type -many times more than there is in a dozen of the largest printing offices, including type of all grades. The Record uses but three kinds of type—long primer, nonpareil and brevier. The body of the Record is set up in brevier, bold face, solid. Extracts are set in nonpareil. Some announcements and a little of other matter is put in long primer. The bulk of newspaper matter in the daily press is in nonpareil or minion, so that the Record has its body-matter in a little larger type than the newspapers use on the average. It is printed on good heavy paper. About 12,000 copies are published. Each member of the Honse gets about twenty-seven, and each Senator about forty copies daily. These they have mailed regularly from the Government Printing Office to those they wish to have them. Some of them are preserved and bound at the end of the session, all free of cost. A new dress of type for the Record costs. in round figures, $73,000. It costs probably $3,000 to $5,000 to give a first-class daily newspaper a dress now. The last type came from a foundry in Chicago, and filled 383 boxes, averaging a weight of 115 pounds. By purchasing in such large quantities prices are made very low. The nonpareil cost in round figures 43 cents, the brevier 36 cents and the long primer 31 cents a pound net. This is a reduction of about 33 per cent. from the customary prices. The old type is sold at the best prices the Public Printer can get. It is usually about half worn when sold, and ordinarily commands about 5 centsa pound more than the metal is worth. Many newspapers in the country have been given a new dress from the old dresses of the Congressional Record. A two-year dress of the Record is ortwelve months in a country office, as there is so much in use here, and then everything is stereotyped. The Congressional Record

A Bill Providing for Its Creation to Be at Once Introduced in the Senate.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6 .- About the first bill which will be introduced in the Senate will be the one for the establishment of the permanent census bureau. Though Mr. Porter has been confined to his house for some time by severe illness, he has been very active in drawing up the measure. In its general nature it will be in the line suggested by recent dispatches from Washington on the necessity of a permanent bareau. It will provide for a superintendent of the census and itschiefs of divisions. No stress is laid by Mr. Porter on either the salaries to be paid for the chiefs of division, as he is willing that these matters, as well as the creation of an assistant superintendent shall be left entirely with the discretion of the committees of the two houses. An important feature of the bill is the provision that the new bureau shall be under the control, in the matter of appointments, of the civil-service law. There is no doubt felt here that this will pass the Senate very promptly, and time will show that the much-talked-about opposition to Mr. Porter and the census in the House of Representatives has been very greatly exagger-

HOW SITTING BULL DIED.

The Sioux Chieftain Was Treacherously Shot According to a Soldier Who Was Present.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 6 .- Conrad Disstler, who made the sixty-mile march across the deadly sand-plains of the Sioux reservation, from Fort Gates to Grand river, with Troop F. Eighth Cavairy, on the 6th of last December, told the whole story of the killing of Sitting Bull this afternoon. He was shown the affidavit of Sitting Bull's wives, charging that Bull was murdered, and said it was substantially correct. Disstler, who was an eye-witness of the killing, said: "Red Tomahawk never liked Bull, and he was glad of an opportunity to go into his camp under government orders. Troops F, C and G. Eighth Cavalry, under Captain Frecht, arrived at Grand river at 6 o'clock on the morning of Dec. 7. The Indian police were somewhat ahead of us, and Red Tomahawk, their leader, found and entered the tenee of Sitting Bull. When he told the chief that he had to go with him, Bull made no resistance, but came out. He was surrounded by women, and they, alarmed, made an outery. Tomahawk suddenly drew his pistol and shot the aged chief in the hip. Bull fell to the ground wounded, but not mortally, while Tomahawk and his party made for a log cabin, where they were quickly besieged by the hostiles.

"Captain Frecht brought the two fieldguns into play at once. He and Troop G protected them, while we of Troop F were dismounted and sent down the hill on a charge into the camp. As we started the Hotchkiss and Gatting gups began their fire. The hostiles fled, with poor offer of resistance. They crossed the Grand river and ran up one of the many gullies open-

"Sitting Bull, after receiving his wound had crawled into a bush, and there with his rifle was making a fight. He was dragged forth, and an Indian policeman sprang forward, and, with a broken pole used on the side of wagons, beat in his whose express benefit an almost prohibitory | head; another broke his rifle over his head and still others slashed his face horribly with their knives. In this manner he died. Lieutenant Slocum did all that he could to prevent this brutality, but the police were infuriated, and, having lost five or six of their number in the scrimmage, they were not to be pacified."

IMPRISONED IN A BOILER.

Singular Experience of Daniel Donlin, an En gineer, Employed in a New York Hotel.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.-A rather singular accident happened to Daniel Donlin, who is employed as engineer in the Colonnade Hotel, on Broadway. The hotel, which is owned by ex-Judge Henry Hilton, runs through the block from Broadway to Lafayette place. In the basement facing on Lafayette place is the boiler, where steam is generated for heating purposes. At 9 o'clock, on Friday morning, Donlin snut off the steam and drew the fire under the boiler, for the purpose of cleaning it, and when it had cooled sufficiently he entered the boiler through the man-hole in the dome. The dome, or drum, is on top of the shell of the boiler, and the opening in the boiler is somewhat narrower than the man-hole in the dome. Donlin, who is rather too stoutly built for such work, got his knees wedged in the boiler opening. The more he tried to wriggle out the tighter he became wedged in, so that finally he could not move either way. He called for help, but the employes who came to his assistance could do nothing for him. Finally Judge Hilton, who had been telephoned for, came down, and sent in a hurry cal for a gang of boiler-makers. It was decided to remove the dome and then cut out one of the boiler-plates. Donlin, who was getting weak, was given stimulants, and the boiler-makers worked with all possible speed. It was two hours, however, before the imprisoned man was released.

After singing by the choir, the invocation was offered by Dr. R. D. Spellman, after which Rev. W. O. Pierce, of this city, delivered the memorial address. He dwelt touchingly on the events in the career of the dead Governor. After another song by the choir Governor Chase was introduced to the audience by Rev. I. P. THE OLD WHIPPING-POST.

Pair of Delaware Burglars Pilloried One Hour and then Publicly Whipped.

NEWCASTLE, Del., Dec. 6. - Yesterday Sheriff Simmons put the cat-o'-nine-tails on the backs of three prisoners. Two of the victims were William Wood and Edward Smith, white men, convicted of robbing the house of Robert Smith, and assaulting Smith, Mrs. Maria Chapman and Mrs. Isabella Angeline. Wood and Smith and a man named Amos Tucker entered Smith's house on the night of Aug. 1 last, knocked Smith, who is nearly eighty years old, down, threatened to kill Mrs. Chapman and compelled Mrs. Angeline to go down stairs and open her trunk, from which over $50 in money was taken. The men left behind them a heavy club, a clasp knife and several pieces of rope, which were evidently to be used to tie the folks in the Wood and Tucker were recognized by their voices, and the three men were soon arrested in Philadelphia. Tucker, how-

The other victim was Elias Sezars, a colored man, who stole a horse. He stood in the pillory for one hour, and received twenty lashes. Five hundred men and boys witnessed the whippings. Wood and Smith were in the pillory from 11 to 12 o'clock, and were very nervous when taken down. They were whipped at 12:30 o'clock. Wood was very nervy, and took the forty lashes with hardly a flinch. The blows were laid on lightly, but in several places the blood could be seen beneath the white skin, which was not broken. Smith was equally nervy, although one-half of the blows were well put on. His back was in a bad condition. Wood and Smith have five years to serve. Both men were in good condition, and the race was one of the best ever seen here. According to the terms of the challenge McClelland gave Seibert a halfmile start, notwithstanding which the betting was 10 to 7 in McClelland's favor. Promptly at 4 o'clock the starter, Jack Crogan, said the word, and the men were off. The first mile was run in five minutes and five seconds. But after rounding the stake Hanlan stopped pulling, apparently to wipe the perspiration from his brow, and allowed McLean to gain some eighty yards. The pull home was a procession, McLean winning by eighty yards. Time, 23 minutes 47 seconds. The large crowd present hooted the rowers, claiming the race was an obvious fake.

The elderly man wanted a draft cashed on a bank in Dublin, Ireland, and while he was talking the younger man took $2,200 from the counter without being observed by the teller. The two men then left, saying they would secure identification from the Rev. Dr. Hall. Shortly after their departure the money was missed, but they had left the town. rumor reached here to-night that one of the robbers had been caught at Kenton, O., and had been fatally shot by a policeman. The report says that over $1,000 was found on his person.

Prohibition in South Carolina. COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 6.—The House of Representatives yesterday passed, by a vote of 40 to 24, a prohibition bill. The bill absolutely prohibits the sale of beer, iquors, wines, etc., in any portion of the State, or the transportation of either by railroads, express companies, etc., under heavy penalties. It was passed after a bitter fight lasting two days. The law is said to be framed on that now in force in lowa.

School-Teachers Were Rated Low Then. North Vernon Sun.

The venerable Judge John Pitcher, in alluding to the unfavorable condition of things when Governor Hovey's father came to this county from Vermont, said: "Mr. Hovey came from Vermont to take his chances here as a school-teacher, but, unfortunately, a school-teacher then was not considered as valuable as a coon dog." Therefore the Governor's father was in very straitened circumstances when he died, and Alvin, his son, began life in a way to de-velop both muscle and brain power, and from the very outset manifested the most scrupulous honesty and integrity. Whatever his hands found to do, even to most menial labor, so !t was honorable, he cheerfully performed.

CURRENT PERIODICALS.

The opening paper in The Engineering Magazine for December is the first of notable series by Dr. Coleman Sellers, of Philadelphia, on "Amerian Supremacy in Applied Mechanics." "A Permanent Census Bureau," is advocated by Edward Atkinson. J. F. Holloway contributes a paper on Robert Fulton, entitled "Fulton Night' with the Engineers." Prof. Edward H. Williams, jr., of Lehigh University, treats of "Geology from a Business Point of View." "The Canadian Pacific Rail-T. Kennard Thomson. Another railroad article of interest is entitled "Picturesque Suburban Railroad Sta-tions," by Bradford Lee Gilbert. The second paper by George R. Dunell on "The Manchester Ship-canal," recounts some notable feats in engineering. "Impure Water and Public Health." by Dr. Floyd Davis, of Drakel University, relates to avoidable dangers from typhoid fever and other diseases due to contaminated drink-ing water. "Landscape Beauty at Newport," is discussed by John De Wolf, a landscape architect of much experience. "The Conditions Causing a Cold Wave," are explained by Prof. T. Russell, of the United

that service upon bears weather predictions.

A chapter of the interminable series of "Italian Old Masters" forms the opening article of the December Century, and supplies the Madonna and child necessary for Christmas illustration. Frank R. Stockton contributes a characteristic story called "The Christmas Shadrach." Kipling's and Balisteir's joint serial takes its hero at a jump from Colorado, or thereabouts, to India. Some astonishing adventures are evidently in store for that worthy. Julian Raiph has a well-illustrated article on the Bowery as it was and is. "The Ocean from Real Life" is a graphic description of a wild voyage on a sailing vessel from New Guinea, in the western Pacific ocean, to New Bedford. The relation of science to immortality is discussed at some length by Augustus Du Bois. "The Golden Age of Pastel" is a sketch that should be of interest to art students. "Characteristics" is the title of a new serial story by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell. Among other contributions are "Mozart After a Hundred Years" and "Sherman and the San Francisco Vigilantes." Several short stories and a number of poems go to make up the number.

The Ladies' Home Journal for December opens with a short story by Miss Mamie Dickens, daughter of the novelist Charles Dickens. The story is just about what a young woman called "Mamie" might be expected to write. A promised "feature" of the magazine for the coming year is a series of articles on a variety of topics written by the daughters of distinguished men. The most of these so-called "famous" daughters have done nothing to earn fame for themselves, and their views are of no consequence to the public whatever. Such an enterprise as this is a cheapening of literature and unworthy of a publication that counts so many of the best writers on its list of contributors. Among those who will add to the attractiveness of its pages next year are Mrs. Sara Orne Jewett, one of the best short story writers; Mrs. Burton Harrison, W. D. Howells, who will have a story of "American Girl Life," and Robert J. Burdette, who will act in an editorial capacity. Palmer Cox's famous "Brownies" will continue to disport themselves through its pages.

A new and entertaining featureof the New England Magazine is a department of literary criticism, conducted by Walter Blackburn Harte. It is called "In a Corner at Dodsley's." Ensconced in this corner Mr. Harte discourses of writers and their work in an independent and vigorous fashion that is truly refreshing. He is particularly severe upon the pretenders in literature-that increasingly numerous class of persons who achieve what some regard as fame by writing books of doubtful merit after they have become famous or notorious in other directions. Mr. Harte, who is himself a Canadian, has another contribution in the shape of a "write-up" of Canadian journalists and journalism. Other papers of the number are: "Randolph of Roanoke and His People," "Brunswick and Bowdoln College," "Pen Pictures of the Bosphorus, "Stories of Salem Witchcraft" and "The New South-The City of Fort Worth." This magazine is giving considerable attention to illustration with good results.

When a person looks through the table of contents of the North American Review and makes the remark that it contains nothing of interest his judgment as to literary matter may be regarded as imperfect. Here is the December number, in which Professor Bryce discusses the "Negro Problem," followed by Colonel Ingersoil's lively description of three philanthrophists, two of whom are not Now and then there is a novel topic, and of this sort is that of Admiral Luce, "The Benefits of War." Gen. Horace Porter discusses "Railway Rates," and Master Workman Powderly "The Workingman and Free Silver." "The Quorum of European Legislatures" is an article which embraces the opinions of a large number of authorities on parliamentary law in Europe, who unanimously sus-tain ex-Speaker Reed. These are only a portion of the valuable papers in the Review. The "Notes and Comments" are not the least interesting feature of the number.

The Youth's Companion is one of those perennial joys that always fulfill expectations. Each number contains entertainment for children, young and old, and readers of advancing years, who look over its pages with interest, are inclined to dispute with "youth" its exclusive claim to the paper. The Companion is edited with the greatest care, its corps of contributors includes the best writers of this country and England, and the child who receives it has a weekly supply of the best literature. A variety of special attractions are offered for the coming year.

Sun and Shade for December has a very fine portrait of General Lew Wallace. Its excellence in finish and as an accurate likeness makes it desirable for framing. Among other photogravures of the number are a portrait of Annie Clark, the actress; a reproduction of Rosa Bonheur's "Horse Fair." "Her First Love Letter," from a painting by Marcus Stone, and "A Christmas Pudding." from a photograph. This publication, which is without letter press, gives a number of attractive pictures with each issue, and shows the progress of the protographic art. New York Photogravure

Company. The Eclectic Magazine, which can be depended on to contain the cream of English periodical literature, has in its December table of contents papers on the following topics: "The Demoralization of Russia, "The Reflex Effect of Asiatic Ideas," "The Emancipation of Woman," "The Grindstone Theory of the Milky Way," "Austria, Its Society, Politics and Religion," "The Chinese Atrocities," "Charles Stewart Parnell." "Darwinism in the Nursery" and "Is Man the Only Reasoner?"

The Magazine of Art (Cassell & Co.) takes a new departure by offering a colored frontispiece for the first time. The process is called chromo-typogravure, and though removed to Denver, Col., about ten years ago to secure climatic influences conducive to better health and but recently returned to Milwaukee.

A disappointed office-seeker can kick up increase in wages, and the grand officers to better health and but recently returned to Milwaukee.

A disappointed office-seeker can kick up increase in wages, and the grand officers to the square inch—or thinks blind jackass in a colony of black-and-white prints. An article on the new books make it a useful guide to Where to Draw the Line—A Word to Art purchasers.

be profitably read by all such students. The other features of the number are of the usual interest. The people, young and old, who are "reading up" with a view to becoming thoroughly informed on the history of Queen Isabella's period and events leading therefrom before the Columbian exposition opens, can do no better than to read articles bearing on the topic that appear from month to the current issue treats of "Some of Queen Isabella's Descendants." l'eople who enjoy the dissection of poetry, the laying bare of its frame-work and the pursuit of its vaguest suggestion to its ultimate possibilities, will probably find 'Poet Lore" suited to their needs. Subects discussed in the current issue are 'Curiosities in Sonnet Literature," "The Allegory in Hamlet," Pushkin's "Boris Gounof," "The Lesson of Cymbeline" and "Browning Study Hints." Published in Philadelphia. In the English Illustrated Magazine (Macmillan & Co.) is an illustrated description of Hatfield House, the home of the Marquis of Salisbury; Lee Knowles writes about games at Rugby School; the English game of hockey is described; Archdeacon Farrar writes about "Three Portraits of Milton;" the "Use of the Lathe" is described by W. A. S. Benson, and W. Clark Russell continues his serial, "A Strange Elopement."

December Wide Awake has a table of contents that can hardly fail to please the most exacting and critical of young readers. Good stories, articles of a more serious character, but entertaining as well as instructive, bits of verse, delightful illustrations, all go to make up a magazine of the sort that must meet with general ayproval. Many new features of interest are promsed for the coming year. D. Lathrop & Co., Boston. The Doll's Dress-maker is a little magazine that will please little girls by giving them patterns and directions for making their dolls' clothes and the mothers by encouraging a taste for sewing among the children. The Christmas number has a variety of attractive features. Firty cents a year. Published by Jenny Wren, 37 East Seventy-seventh street, New York.

Among the subjects discussed by professional musicians in the December Etude (Philadelphia) are "Who Should Study Music?" "Classic Music," "Musical Sociables," "Music in Its Relation to Intellectual Life," "On Piano Study," the latter by Professor Sherwood. Mrs. Flora Hunter has an article on "Music Lessons from the Pupils' Stand-point."

"The Sunny Hour" is the title of a reall monthly magazine published "by a boy for boys." A portrait of the young editor shows a lad with a bright face and a look of determination that promises success in any undertaking in which he may engage. The "Hour" contains stories, poems, games and other features of interest to youthful readers. 18 West Fourteenth street, New

Frank Leslie's Monthly for December offers a variety of Christmas literature. In addition to these holiday features are a story by Joaquin Miller, a sketch of Spurgeon and his church, by Rev. F. C. Iglehart, and a chapter on animal training and animal intelligence by Ernest Ingersoil.

The Quarterly Register of Current History is, as its name indicates, a summary and review of the events of the three months preceding publication. It forms a convenient work of reference for busy people. Issued by the Detroit News Company.

Scribner's Book Buyer for December is the study. Detmold's "Breezy Day," is well a book of 150 pages, and is made beauti-
